Despite the fact that COVID-19 pandemic has impacted and forced many if not all types of business including women enterprises to close down due to severe social and economic restraint, the fund will be a great initiative to leverage Cambodian SMEs and entrepreneurs in recovering and rebuilding their resilience.

Mrs. Pong Limsan has embraced the fund and remain firmly visionary and goal-oriented. She said: “The fund focuses on women and I think this’ll be a great helping hand for women entrepreneurship and serve as a source of motivation for women to dare to dream for herself and her community.”

She continued that the fund will significantly provide hopes and encourage a lot of SMEs to maintain, recover and re-imagine their business.

The fund, according to the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (UNESCAP), will be provided up to $50,000 for newly-launched Women Enterprise Recovery Fund to uphold and develop their businesses.

Peth Yoeung, under First Womentech Asia, is greatly exhilarated for all women-led firms who have been struggling and hoping to recover from the COVID-19 impact.
